ROOFING UNDERLAYMENT INSTALLATION BULLETIN

Our asphalt saturated underlayments are water resistant, not waterproof. They are designed, manufactured, and intended to be used as a secondary water barrier on steep slope roof systems. At no point are they meant to be used as a primary protection layer against rain, ice, or snow.

For best results, the primary roof covering should be installed immediately after the underlayment is installed. If an installer allows the underlayment to be exposed to rain, ice, or snow, that installer does so at their own risks.
